

EMPLOYEE HANDBOOK

Workplace Practices, Attendance, Remote Work and Professional Conduct

Document structure: Each section has a unique policy identifier to support precise retrieval and citation in RAG systems.

EH-001 — Purpose

This handbook describes general workplace expectations, working hours, attendance, probation, remote work, performance reviews, professional conduct, and employee responsibilities.

EH-002 — Working Hours

Standard working hours are 9:00 AM to 6:00 PM, Monday through Friday, with a one-hour lunch break. Certain teams may have approved schedules that differ because of business requirements. Employees are expected to be available during their assigned working hours.

EH-003 — Attendance

Employees must record attendance using the company's approved attendance system. Employees who expect to be late or absent should inform their manager as early as possible. Repeated attendance irregularities may be reviewed by the manager and HR.

EH-004 — Probation

New regular employees normally complete a 6-month probation period. During probation, employees are expected to meet role requirements, follow company policies, maintain satisfactory attendance, and participate in feedback discussions. The company may confirm employment, extend probation where permitted, or take another employment action consistent with applicable rules.

EH-005 — Remote Work

Remote work is permitted only for eligible roles and with manager approval. Approved remote employees must maintain normal working hours, remain reachable through approved communication channels, protect company information, and attend required meetings. Working remotely does not remove normal performance or attendance expectations.

EH-006 — Performance Reviews

Employees normally participate in formal performance reviews twice per year. Reviews may consider role objectives, quality of work, collaboration, reliability, communication, and demonstrated responsibilities. Managers may also provide feedback outside the formal review cycle.

EH-007 — Professional Conduct

Employees must communicate respectfully, avoid harassment and discrimination, follow workplace safety requirements, protect company property, and act professionally with colleagues, customers, and business partners. Concerns about inappropriate conduct should be reported through appropriate management or HR channels.

EH-008 — Employee Responsibilities

Employees are responsible for understanding applicable policies, completing assigned work, protecting company information, maintaining accurate records, using company systems appropriately, reporting security incidents promptly, and completing required training.

EH-009 — Communication and Meetings

Employees should use approved company communication tools for business matters. Required meetings should be attended on time unless the employee has an approved conflict. Important decisions and work updates should be documented in the appropriate company system.

EH-010 — Workplace Changes

Employees must inform HR or their manager about changes that affect employment administration, such as contact information changes, where the applicable company process requires notification.

EH-011 — Policy Compliance

The handbook should be read together with the Leave Policy and Company Policy. Where a specific policy contains a detailed rule for a particular subject, employees should follow that specific rule.

EH-012 — Examples

Example 1: A remote employee is still expected to work 9:00 AM to 6:00 PM unless an alternate schedule is approved. Example 2: A probationary employee is still responsible for attendance and policy compliance. Example 3: A performance review can consider both results and workplace behaviors described in this handbook.
